Crohn's disease and ulcerative colitis

The thought of traveling with Crohn's disease or ulcerative colitis can be stressful or overwhelming. However, following a few simple tips can help make vacations or work trips easier to navigate.

What to Bring

Pack enough medication to last the whole trip + a few extra days
Keep medications in original containers when flying
Carry a list of all your medications and when to take them
If traveling overseas, research the name of the drug in that country and include that in your medication list
If applicable, contact the place of lodging to ensure a fridge is available to stock medications that need to be kept cold
Carry your insurance information and the insurance company's phone number
Pack sunscreen if planning on being outside; certain prescriptions increase sensitivity to sun exposure and risk for burns
Pack items to keep you distracted and reduce stress, such as books, music or games
Pack "safe foods," non-perishables you can comfortably enjoy

Dietary Tips

Request special meals when applicable
Consider eating after arriving at your destination, instead of while traveling, to avoid an unanticipated bathroom incident

Always

Continue to follow your treatment plan provided by your health care provider
Request an aisle seat on planes, trains or buses
Map out pharmacies in the area you will be staying and document hours of operation
If flying, arrive at the airport a few hours early to allow plenty of time for restroom use and to keep stress levels to a minimum

Create an Emergency Kit*

Toilet Paper
Hand Sanitizer
Water
Flare-Friendly Food Items
Medicine
*Keep this in your briefcase, purse or carry-on
